Nec poterit primogenita ea ratione vel occasione post natis seroribus homagium vel custodiam vel aliquam aliam subiectionem exigere vel habere, quia cum omnes seruos sint quasi vnus heres de vna hereditate, si primogenita posset habere homagium aliaz seroz vel custodiam petere, tunc esset illa hereditas diuisa ita quod primogenita seroz esset simul & semel de vna hereditate domina & heres, heres autem sue partis & domina seroz suarum quod quidem in isto casu fieri nō poterit, tum ipsa primogenita nihil posset petere priusquam alie seruos, nisi capitale messuagium ratione enecie. Preterea si primogenita huiusmodi homagium de postnatis seroribus suis acciperet, esset quasi dominus earum, & habere posset custodiam earum, et filioz suoz, & hoc esset quasi cōmittere agnum lupo ad deuorandū. HEnricus dei gracia ꝛc. The king our Soueraigne lord considereth howe daily within this realme, his coine is traiterously counterfaited, murders, robberies, felonies ben greuously committed and done, also vnlawful retainers, idlenesse, vnlawful plaies, extorcions, misdemenings of sherifs, eschetors and many other enormities & vnlawful demeanings daylye growed more & more within this his realme, to the great displeasure of God, hurt & empouerishinge of his subiects, and to the subuersion of the policy and good gouernaunce of this his realme: and by these saide enormities and mischiefes his peace is broke, his subiects troubled, inquieted, and impouerished, the husbandry of this land decaied, wherby ẏ church of Englande is vpholden, the seruice of God continued, euery man thereby hath sustenaunce, euery inheritor his rent for his land: for repressing & auoiding of the said mischiefs, sufficiẽt lawes and ordinances be made by auctorite of many and diuers parlemẽts holde within this realme, to ẏ great costs of the kinge, his lords and commons of the same, & lacketh nothing but that the saide lawes be not put in due execucion. Which lawes ought to be put in due execucion by the Iustice of peace in euerye shire of this realme, to whome his grace hathe putte and geuen full auctority so to do sith the beginning of his raigne. And now it is commen to his knowledge that his subiects bee litle eased of the saide mischiefs by the saide Iustices, but by many of thẽ, rather hurt then helped. And if his subiects cõplaine to these Iustices of peace, of anye wrongs done to them, they haue therby no remedy, and the said mischiefs do encrease and not subdued. The kings grace considereth that a great parte of the wealth and prosperity of this Lande standeth in that, that hys subiectes maye lyue in suertye vnder his peace in their bodies and goods & that the husbandry of this lande may encrease and be vpholde, which must be had by due execucion of the sayde lawes and ordinances, chargeth and commaundeth the Iustices of peace of this his shire to endeuour them to do & execute the tenour of their commission, the said lawes and ordinances ordeined for subduing of ẏ prmisses as they wil stand in loue & fauor of his grace, and in auoidinge of the paines that be ordeined if they do the contrary. And ouer that he chargethe and commandeth that euery manne, what degre or condition that he be of that let them, in word or deede, to execute their saide auctorite in any maner forme aboue saide, that they shew it to his grace. And if they do it not & it coñ to his knowledge by other thẽ by them they shal not stande in hys fauoure, but be taken as men out of credence, & be put out of commission for euer. And ouer this he chargeth & commaundeth al manner of men, as wel the poore as the riche, whiche bee to him al one in due mintstration of Iustice, that is hurt or greued in any thinge, that the saide Iustice of peas maye hear, determine, or execute in any wise, that he so greued make his complaint to the iustice of the peace, that nert dwelleth vnto him, or to any of his felowes, and desire a remedy. And if he then haue no remedy, if it be nighe suche time as his iustices of Assises come into that shire, that then he so greued, shewe his cõplaint to the same iustices. Anno. 25. H. 8. cap. 19. This act is repelled by 1. & 2. P. & M. and reuiued by Anno. 1. Eliz. cap. 1.

2 ¶ Where lithen the beginning of this presente Parlement for repelle of the exaction of annates and firste fruites of archebishoprickes and bishoprickes of this Realme, wrongfully taken by the bishop of Rome: otherwise called the Pope and the See of Rome: It is ordeined and established by an acte, amonges other thinges, that the paiments of the annats of the firste fruites, and all maner contributions for the same, for any such archbishoprick or bishoprick or for any bulles to be obtained from the see of Rome, to or for the said purpose or intent, should vtterly cesse, & no such to be paid for any archbishopricke or bishoprick within this realme otherwise then in ỳ same act is expressed.

And that no manner of pson or persons to be named, elected, presented, or postulated to any Archbishoprick or bishoprick wthin this Realm should pay the said annats or firste fruites, nor any other man of some or somes of money, pensions, or annuities for ỳ same, or for any other like exaction or cause vpō paine to forfait to our soueraine Lorde the king, his heires & successors, al maner his goods & catteis for euer, & al the temporal lands and possessions of the said Archbishoprick or bishoprick, duringe the time that he or they that should offend cōtrary to the said act, should haue, possesse, and enioy the said Archebishoprick or bishoprick.

And it was further enacted, ỳ if any person named or presented to ỳ See of Rome by the kings highnes or his heires or successors to bee bishop of any see or dioces within this realme should happen to be letted delaied or deferred at the see of Rome from any such bishoprick wherunto he should be so presented by meane of restraite of bulles of the said bishope of Rome otherwise called the Pope, and other thinges requisite to the same, or should be demed at the see of Rome, vpō cōuenient suit made for any bulles requisite for any suche cause: that then euery person so presented mought or shoulde be consecrated here in Englande by the archbishop, in whose prouince the said bishoprick shalbe: so alwaies that the same persō should be named and presented by the kynge for the time being, to the said archbishop. And if any persō being named and presented as is aforesaid, to any Archbishoprick of this Realme, making conuenient suit as is aforsaide should happen to be letted, delayed, deferred, or otherwise disturbed frō the said Archbishoprick, for lacke of palle, bul or other thinges to him requisite to be obtained at the see of Rome that thē euery such person so named & presented to be Archbishop, mought and shoulde bee consecrated and inuested after presentacion made as is aforesayd, by any other two bishops within this realme, whom ỳ kinges highnes, or anye hys heyres or successoures ceſſours kinges of Englande woulde appoint and aſſigne for ỳ ſame, accordinge, and after like maner as diuers Archebiſhops and Biſhops haue bene heretofore in auncient time, by ſuche the kinges moſt noble progenitoures made, conſecrated and inueſted within this realme.

And it was further enacted by the ſaid acte, that euery Archebiſhop and biſhop being named and preſented by the kings highnes, his heirs and ſucceſſors kings of England, & being cõſecrated & inueſted as is aforeſaid ſhall be inſtalled accordigly, and ſhould bee accepted, taken & reputed, vſed & obeyed, as an archbiſhop or biſhop of ỳ dignitie, ſee, or place, whereunto he ſhalbe ſo named, preſented and conſecrated, & as other like prelates of the ꝓuince, ſee, or dioces haue bene vſed, accepted take, and obeied, which haue had and obtained compleetely their buls and other thigs requiſite in that behalf frõ the ſee of Rome, and alſo ſhoulde fully & entierly haue and enioy all ỳ ſpiritualties and temporalties of the ſaid archebiſhoprick or biſhoprik, in as large, ample, and beneficiall maner, as any of his or their predeceſſors hadd or enioyed i ỳ ſaid archbiſhoprick or biſhoprike ſatisfyng and yelding vnto ỳ kinges highneſſe, & to his heirs and ſucceſſors all ſuche duities, rights and inueſts, as before time hath ben accuſtomed to be paide for anye ſuche Archebiſhoprick or biſhoprick according to the auncient lawes and cuſtomes of this Realme, and the kinges ꝓrogatiue Royal, as in the ſaide acte amongs other things is more at large mencioned. And albeit the ſaide biſhop of Rome, otherwiſe called the Pope, hathe bene informed and certified of the effectual contents of the ſaide acte to the intente that by ſome gentle waie the ſaide exactions might haue beene reꝛdreſſed & reformed: yet neuertheleſſe, ỳ ſaid biſhop of Rome hitherto, hathe made none anſwere of his minde therin to the kynges highenes nor deuiſed or required anye reaſonable waies to and with our ſaid ſoueraigne lord for ỳ ſãe. Wherfore hit moſt excellẽt goodnes, for the welth and profit of this hit realme, and ſubiects of the ſame, hath not onely put his moſte gracious and Roial aſſent to the foreſaide acte, but alſo hath ratified and confirmed the ſame, and euerye clauſe and article therin conteined as by his letters patents vnder his great ſeale enrolled in ỳ pliament rolle of this preſent parliamẽt more at large is conteined. And for as much as in the ſayd acte is not plainly and certainly expreſſed, in what manner and faſhion archbiſhops & biſhops ſhalbe elected, preſented, inueſted, and conſecrated within this realme, and in all other the kings dominions.

Be it nowe therfore enacted by the kyng our ſouerain Lord, by thaſſẽt of the Lords ſpirituall and temporall, & the commons in this preſent parliamẽt aſſembled, and by authoritie of ỳ ſame, that the ſaid act, and euery thinge therein contayned, ſhalbee and ſtand in ſtrengthe, vertue and effecte, except onely that no perſon or perſones hereafter ſhalbee preſented, nominated or commended to the ſayde Biſhoppe of Rome, otherwiſe called ỳ pope, or to the See of Rome, to or for ỳ dignitie or office of any Archebiſhop or biſhop within this Realme, or in anye other the kinges dominions, nor ſhal ſende nor procure therfore anye manner of bulles, breues, palles or other thinges requiſite for an archebiſhop or biſhoppe nor ſhal pay any ſummes or mony for annates, firſt fruites, or otherwiſe for expeditiõ of any ſuch bulles, breues, or pales: but that by thauctoritye of thys act, ſuch preſenting, nominating or cõ-
